Tip of the hat

Marie Robins of Granite City recently received a Loving Care Finalist Award from the National Kidney Foundation of Illinois. "All her little daily kindness add up," a co-worker wrote. Robins' nomination, Robins, a kidney dialysis nurse at the Southwest Illinois Regional Dialysis Center, was honored for remembering a little detail that might detract a patient can buy his favorite popcorn on the way out of the building — as well as performing big kindnesses — sitting with the family of a patient who refused dialysis until the family waited for the patient's death.

Deep-well drainage faces hurdles

By Mike Myers
Staff writer

GRANITE CITY — The U.S. Army Corps of Engineers says its plan for about 40 deep wells and pumping facilities is still on track, despite problems that are still becoming apparent.

The wells and pumps would be designed to lower the unusually high underground water table in part of Metro East.

But, the Corps of Engineers admitted, there could be some major obstacles.

At the moment, the Corps is working on the existing storm drainage system of the Metro East Sanitary District, the project is dependent on the $23 million MESD rehabilitation project, funded with the aid of a 1989 tax increase referendum. The rehabilitation project is also being overseen by the Corps of Engineers.

The $6 million deep-well program is not funded by the MESD. Its funding is a commitment by a congressional order from the Illinois Department of Transportation. The MESD, however, agreed to provide the land for the wells.

Dan Marshall, who is handling the project for the Corps of Engineers, said the first phase — an 18-month study of water quality — has been going forward "pretty much on schedule" and that a final report should be ready in October.

There are no major problems, Marshall said; the actual drilling and construction could begin as scheduled, sometime in the 1995 fiscal year.

However, Marshall said, a preliminary draft of the water quality study that has just been prepared would seem to have uncovered some problems. "It's too early to be pessimistic. The review process has just begun and there are still a lot of people who need to evaluate it," Marshall said. "But just looking at it myself, I think there are some things there that could temper our optimism."

One reason for the water quality study, Marshall said, was a fear by the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency that the groundwater might contain levels of iron and magnesium that exceed the level allowed by the agency.

Preliminary tests have indicated the iron and magnesium levels are not extremely high and the Corps of Engineers is sure a rule change could be granted by the Illinois Pollution Control Board to allow the water to be pumped directly into the MESD ditches. "When hearing 'creeds' at that point, we did not include treatment of the water," Marshall said. "I believe it was decided that the cost of treatment (if required) would be higher than the value of the protection the (well and pump) project could provide."

Although iron and magnesium may not be deterrents, other problems may exist. If Marshall is reading the preliminary water quality figures right, he said, getting the rule change might be out of the question. "It's not that it's impossible," he said, "the water in those areas might require some form of treatment before it could be released into the canals."

Another factor, Marshall said, is that the EPA has added a number of Metro

National speaker salutes all vets

GRANITE CITY — Addressing a crowd of citizens following the city's first Flag Day Parade Saturday, nationally known speaker Rev. John L. Steer said America won the Persian Gulf War because we kept the politics out.

The Rev. Steer, who has 100 degrees as many veterans and uniformed servicemen stood at attention as Steer saluted the National Guard and the Greater Granite City War Memorial.

The speech at the memorial followed a parade of floats, veterans organizations, baton twirlers and bands. The procession had traversed Madison Avenue from 27th Street.

Receiving multiple wounds on three different occasions in Vietnam, Steer won the Congressional Medal of Honor for bravery. He fought alongside two others who received the honor posthumously.

"That is the kind of blood that has been spilled for this flag," he said. "It wasn't like the John Wayne or Chuck Norris movies."

The Rev. Steer, who was a paratrooper from a unit of the 173rd Airborne Infantry that fought a fierce battle for Hill 875 not far from the Cambodian border on Nov. 18, 1967.

"Most of us felt guilty afterward because we were still alive," he said.

"Thank God we kept politics out of Desert Storm and let the soldiers run the war."

GC Warrior band may be Gator Bowl-bound

By Mike Myers
Staff writer

GRANITE CITY — It's possible the members of the Marching Warriors may have a Gator Bowl in their future.

The School Board recently gave the high school band tentative approval to accept an invitation to play at halftime of the Gator Bowl, to be held Sunday, Dec. 29, in Jacksonville, Fla.

The band will have to raise the money for the trip, approximately $80,000.

The Band Parents organization reported it now has between $10,000 and $15,000 and hopes to be able to earn the rest through fund raisers and donations. The only cost to individuals would be spending money for snacks and souvenirs.

Before approval was granted, several of the band members voiced concerns about the trip and the money.

"The way I heard it, if a kid doesn't want to make the trip they're kicked out of band," said band member Mack Johnson.

David Painter, high school principal, said band director Dennis Meyer had said he would not make the trip mandatory because it involves a field-show contest and a parade contest.

Meyer said he felt participation by 95 percent of the band would be necessary to make it a successful show.

Painter said he had no objection to Gilbert "Gib" Walmsley said he has the same reservations about the trip being mandatory. But he said that, after he met with Painter and Meyer, they had agreed that any student who didn't want to make the trip would be allowed to submit a request that he or she be excused by the high school principal.

The principal, after talking with the student's parents, would make a final decision.

"It makes it like a sports tournament," Walmsley said. "You have to be allowed to count on people making the trip. But you also have to be able to excuse

According to the request, the band must pay Heritage Festivals/Bowl Games of America $1,000 by June 1, $1,950 by Sept. 30 and the remaining balance of $15,958 by Nov. 15. If the trip had to be canceled, the band could have to forfeit as much as 50 percent of that money.

Painter said that, if the trip had to be canceled, the band would be paid enough money. Heritage Festivals would agree to keep all of the band's money paid to that date on account for two more years. It could then be applied toward attending one of the festivals in 1992.

Before voting to allow the Marching Warriors to accept the invitation, the board stipulated that it be kept informed of the status of the fund-raising and that Meyer and the Band Parents be ready to present a realistic assessment of its chances of being able to raise the money at each deadline.

According to figures furnished by Meyer, the total estimated cost is $442 for each band member. That figure is based on $219 for four nights lodging, entry fees, an awards banquet and tickets to the Gator Bowl, $100 for meals, $80 for chartered bus transportation; and $35 for admission to Disney World.

The tentative itinerary shows the band would leave Granite City at 6 a.m. Dec. 26 and arrive in Jacksonville late that day. On Dec. 27, the band would have a field show rehearsal and time for sightseeing.

On Dec. 28, the band would have a massed band rehearsal for halftime and a parade of lights with a concert.

On Dec. 29, the Granite City band would have another massed band rehearsal and then perform at the Gator Bowl. Following the game, the band would drive to Disney World at Orlando, Fla., to spend the day.

After Disney World closed, the band would begin the trip back to Granite City, arriving home the afternoon of Dec. 31.

ASSISTANT ATTORNEY GENERAL Dennis Orsey with half of his staff, at the regional office in Granite City Monday. At left is Don Little, administrative assistant, and at far right is Rod Taylor, a paralegal. Staff has developed its own rotation schedule so there will be someone in the office during four no-pay days this month.

State workers rotating payless days in Granite

GRANITE CITY — Some workers in the Illinois attorney general's Granite City regional office worked a day without pay to keep the office open Monday in the midst of the state budget crunch.

Attorney General Roland Burris last week ordered all 715 employees under his direction to take the next two Mondays and Fridays off without pay.

However, he encouraged workers to volunteer their time to keep the offices running.

Union workers at the Granite City office volunteered to allow at least three people to be in the office on the cutback days. At the office of Attorney General Dennis Orsey, who heads the office, Burris spoke with Jim Leach said.

Normally, the office is staffed with Orsey and five workers, Leach said.

Burris ordered the furloughs to save an estimated $300,000 and prevent his office from running out of money for the fiscal year that ends June 30.

The Illinois Senate last week rejected a supplemental appropriation bill for the rest of the fiscal year that included $400,000 request by Burris.

Opposition to the bill was primarily sparked by $5 million in the legislation for a marina at an East Peoria site being developed by a millionaire businessman and leading Republican fund-raiser.

Some senators said it was inappropriate for Gov. Jim Edgar to be seeking that money when the state hasn't paid bills for several months to nursing homes, pharmacists and others.

Advice not to live by: just sit on it; play .500

On that September day in 1986 when Mike Shanahan and his partners wrapped up the deal to buy control of the St. Louis Blues, one of his new partners sidled up to Shanahan with some advice.

"Just sit on it," said the man, a blue-blooded banker and a member in good standing of Civic Progress, the organization for the chief executives of the biggest companies in town. "Let's just try to play .500 and not lose any money," he added.

Shanahan chose to ignore that typically St. Louis piece of advice. In a curious way, that's why he last week found himself standing next to another blue-blooded Civic Progress banker, announcing that he was giving up control of the team.

The Shanahan saga is a sports story for our times. It teaches us about business, politics, construction and finance, loyalty and treachery. It doesn't teach much about sports but, hey, a sports story can't have everything.

Mike Shanahan's reward for five years of hard work building a sports team was to be squeezed out of the team's ownership. His consolation prizes were the title of chairman, a seat on the team's executive board and a nice chunk of change.

Nobody will say how much change but a good guess is Shanahan will bankroll another five years of stewardship of the Blues. He owned only 12 percent of the team but his 12 percent represented the operating partnership shares of the club. Inasmuch as he paid only $800,000 for his 12 percent, he will make a pretty tidy profit on his investment.

Even with 35 percent return, Shanahan is a piker compared with his predecessor as Blues owner, the legendary Harry Ornstein, who put $3 million of his money into the club in 1966. St. Louis in 1986 had a profit of at least $14 million.

Ornstein and Shanahan did not care much for one another but they had this much in common: they were the only two businessmen in St. Louis who believed hockey had a future here. Everyone else had pretty much bailed out.

Oh, the big banks and businesses chipped in, anywhere from $250,000 to $1 million each. But that was corporate money that was barely a blip on the balance sheets. It was invested as a civic gesture with the understanding that Shanahan, as general partner, would be on the hook for the first $1.8 million in losses each year as well as most of the liability in case the team got sued.

It was a sucker's deal but Shanahan turned into a sucker for hockey. He has a jock's mentality and understands that sports is different from other businesses. Sports trades in heroes and allegiance and other intangibles that don't show up on the bottom line. Sports trades in making people feel good about themselves. Sports is a social activity.

So he retained Jack Quinn, the shrewd Irishman Ornstein had hired as club president, and Ron Caron, the flamboyant general manager Ornstein had imported from Montreal. They watched every penny they spent but they also spent millions of dollars in the right places.

The club started to win. The money it made was plowed right back into the team. Ornstein's silence was contentment.

But, when Shanahan started making noises about needing a new arena, everything changed. You can't balance the books on a sports team without sharing in the money the team generates at the building it plays in and the City of St. Louis wouldn't share the money from The Arena.

And you can't build a new arena without major input from big business, which has to lease the luxury boxes to pay the debt service. And you can't build a new arena without the support of the city. Vince Schoemehl, who wants the new arena where he wants it, not where some guy like Mike Shanahan wants it. And big business is not about to invest all that money unless it controls the team.

Shanahan clearly had to go. The irony is that, if he'd taken that advice five years ago and sat on the team, he'd still have it. Nobody else would have wanted it or a new arena either.

The mayor said Shanahan was important because he gave the Blues "personality." He did more than that; he gave them an attitude—restless, demanding and aggressive. It's an attitude the whole town would do well to adopt. Don't sit on it, boys.

Venice schools still unsure of funds

By Valerie Evenden
Staff writer

VENICE — Honorable dismissals notices to 17 Venice teachers sent March 14 have not yet been rescinded by the school district.

Rehiring letters, officials hope, will be ready for mailing by the end of June when there may be a better idea of the district's overall financial condition and outlook, said the interim superintendent of schools, Robert Vickers.

Ten teachers from the Venice Public Schools and three teachers from the Venice-Lincoln Technical Center with up to 15 years of seniority were given dismissal notices in March, due to uncertainty over whether there would be sufficient funds to pay them salaries in 1991-92.

Most of those receiving similar dismissal notices last year were rehired.

Peter Ponce, Venice-Lincoln Technical Center director, reported hearing no offers, but the center will be funded at the same level as last year, he said at a Venice Board of Education meeting June 13.

He expects to have a firm figure by the June 27 board meeting.

ing, he said.

Programs and operations at the Technical Center are funded through federal and state appropriations, administered by the district, Vickers said. No local tax money goes directly to the adult education school.

It was explained that issuance of honorable dismissal notices does not reflect on the ability of the teacher. The notices are regarded as necessary in the event that funds to operate the adult education center are eliminated or substantially reduced.

Many teachers at Venice-Lincoln originally taught in the public schools and still hold top seniority slots in the district.

Ponce reported that an advertisement for bids, printed in the June 13 edition of the Granite City Press-Record, seeks prices for 100 computer systems, 100 printers, three printers, two parallel switch boxes and five electrical surge suppressors for the adult center.

Details and specifications are available at the center, 300 South Fourth St., Venice.

Bids must be received at the Board of Education Office, 700 Broadway, Venice, by 4 p.m. June 27. The bids will be opened at the June 27 board meeting at 7 p.m.

Board members also authorized Ponce to purchase an air conditioning unit for the director's office and, if necessary, to contract for a part-time bus driver and part-time welding instructor.

Sealed bids will be received for surplus shop tables at Venice-Lincoln and Venice High School until 7 p.m. Thursday, July 25. A minimum bid of $40 for a half-section table and $75 for a full-section table will be required.

"This is a lot less than the tables cost new," Vickers said.

Subdistricts OK'd as expected for BAC

By Jim Haverstick
Staff writer

CHICAGO — The State Board of Elections on Monday unanimously approved the new Belleview Area College subdistrict boundaries.

The action was taken at a board meeting in Chicago, said Dan White, assistant executive director of the board's Chicago office.

The board has divided the 2,182-square-mile community college district into seven subdistricts according to population distribution.

One board member will be elected from each subdistrict to serve on the seven-member Board of Trustees.

"There was not much discussion about the map," White said. "An attorney for The Citizens' Advisory Committee raised some concerns and some of the board members made suggestions. Then the board voted unanimously to approve the map."

The Citizens' Advisory Committee last week filed a lawsuit challenging the constitutionality of the subdistricts. However, the suit was dismissed Friday by a Sangamon County circuit court judge.

The division of BAC into subdistricts was approved by district voters in 1988 because there were complaints that too many of the college trustees were from one area.

The newly approved subdistricts are as follows:

District 1 stretches across all of Randolph County and most of Monroe County.

District 2 includes almost half of St. Clair County and part of Washington County.

Districts 3, 4 and 5 all fall within St. Clair County.

District 6 is in the southwest corner of Madison County.

District 7 spreads across half of Madison County and a small portion of Bond County.

The remapping of the districts could pit four trustees against one another in the next board election, White said. For example, Elizabeth Jenner, Janet McReynolds and board chairman Larry Reinecke all live in District 2. Kay Bennett lives in District 4, Diane Goss lives in District 1 and Robert Maxwell of Granite City lives in District 6.

Though the subdistricting went unopposed by the trustees, Jenne did voice concern that the public and college were not consulted when the boundaries were drawn.

Ketteler's outpatients increasing

A year ago in March, the Ketteler Center, the mental health services of St. Elizabeth Medical Center, began offering new outpatient services. The response has been dramatic, officials say.

Included were individual therapy, family therapy, marital therapy and psychological testing.

From two appointments the first month, the program grew steadily, with a total of 148 appointments in 1990.

"We've seen a lot of families," said Teresa White, PhD, director of Professional Services for the Ketteler Center. "Adolescents, adults and children are all taking advantage of our individual and group services."

There were 47 appointments in a recent month. These clients were seen by one of the four therapists in the program. A fifth therapist will be rejoining the services, and there are plans to add another soon, Dr. White said.

The therapists in the outpatient program, with a combined 20 years of experience in providing group and individual therapy, are all SEMC associates. All are trained at the master's or doctoral level in the areas of psychology, social work, counseling, and marriage/family studies.

SEMC psychologists also are associated with the outpatient program. They are available for consultation as well as medication management.

The program was designed to meet the Joint Commission on Accreditation of Healthcare Organization standards for high quality care.

"We get a lot of inquiries about inpatient treatment," White said. "If it is not an emergency situation, we suggest they try our outpatient services first. The program also provides follow-up care for clients who have received inpatient treatment."

"Outpatient services aid persons who are looking for help in dealing with stress, anxiety or depression. They can also benefit families with children who are experiencing academic, social and disciplinary problems; couples who are considering separation or divorce; single parents who are readjusting after divorce; and persons who are experiencing job performance problems or other difficulties."

"We are also working to develop services for children who have attention deficit hyperactivity disorder, ADHD, and their families," White said.

"We will be helping to organize a support group for parents of ADHD children."

The services are provided on a fee-for-service arrangement. Therapists coordinate with the SEMC billing department to arrange insurance reimbursement. Both day and early-evening appointments are offered.

White is at 798-3608 and the mental health services secretary is at 798-3604.

Wolf cites crime, health, jobs, families, drugs as key issues

SPRINGFIELD — State Rep. Sam Wolf, D-Glendale City, has focused in this year's General Assembly session on issues affecting working families, including reducing drug abuse and crime in area communities.

"The recession has hit local working families particularly hard," Wolf said. "They are working hard to see that their interests are protected in Springfield."

According to Wolf, some of the biggest issues affecting families in Illinois received strong support in the House:

— Universal Health Care, a plan to provide all Illinois families with health insurance. "This plan is unworkable at the state level, but we need to send a signal to Washington that something must be done about the rising health care costs and about senior citizens without health coverage."

— Family Leave legislation, which would allow family members unpaid time off to be with a sick family member. "This is pro-family, pro-senior citizen legislation. I don't see how anyone could be against it," Wolf said.

100-year theme at library

The summer program of the Madison Public Library will spotlight Madison's centennial, which is to be celebrated this year. The library's summer program will be held from 1 to 3 p.m. June 24-28 and is for children 5 to 8 years old.

The library, 1700 Fifth St., will feature movies, sidewalk drawing, smock painting, quilt-block painting, games and puppets.

Sign-up is under way at the library, which is open Monday and Wednesday, 11 a.m. to 5 p.m.; Tuesday and Thursday, 9 to 5; and Friday and Saturday, 10 to 4. For more information, families may call Louise Kern or Kathy Lewis at 876-8448.

City seeks survey answers

A survey deadline has been extended, and Granite City officials are calling for the public's help in completing the survey. Each year, the city is allotted $400,000 in federal funding through the Community Development Block Grant program, to low- and moderate-income neighborhoods for a variety of public improvements.

However, according to census information, the 2300 blocks of the downtown neighborhood, as well as the North Granite area do not qualify as eligible neighborhoods.

Over the past month, a survey has been conducted to establish income levels for the neighborhoods. Due to the small response, the survey deadline has been extended to July 1, 1991.

Neighborhood Improvement Coordinator David Williams said it is essential that all residents of the 2300 blocks of the downtown area and all residents of the North Granite area take the time to respond to the survey. He asks that residents who have not been notified or have not yet responded, contact David Williams, Economic Development Department, 452-6216.

Firm to audit Venice schools

Venice School Board members agreed June 13 to retain the auditing firm of C.J. Schlosser & Co. of Alton under a three-year contract proposal. The auditing fee for 1990-91 was listed as $8,200, including $3,000 for the public school district, $3,000 for the Chapter I federal program, $600 for the child nutrition fund and $3,400 for Venice-Lincoln Technical Center funds.

Schlosser proposed that if the district retain the firm for this year plus audits in 1992 and 1993, the cost of this year's audit would be cut to $8,000. Under the same proposal, the cost to the district for the next two years will be $8,200 and $8,300.

Legislation to prevent companies from hiring permanent replacement workers to replace striking workers. "It is already illegal to fire striking workers. How can it not be illegal to permanently replace them?"

Buy American. "House Democrats worked to help Illinois set the example of putting American products first. American goods are better quality and usually better priced. More importantly, buying American products supports American families," Wolf said.

He also supported a wide array of anti-crime and anti-drug legislation to help clean up Illinois communities.

"There are too many people out there saying the war against drugs can't be won. I am not ready to throw in the towel."

"I am optimistic with the progress we have made and, in the end, we must win and will win," Wolf said.

An effort to establish a statewide grand jury. "This would enable the Illinois attorney general to coordinate statewide efforts against drug kingpins and bring all resources of the state against drug traffickers," Wolf said.

Legislation to set up a system to test parolees and juvenile probationers for drug use. "When parolees choose the path back to drugs, it is a path that always leads back to other crimes. This will enable us to target potentially dangerous criminals and get them off the streets," Wolf commented.

Efforts to reverse Governor Jim Edgar's proposed 90 percent reduction in the state's parole officers. "We cannot allow criminals who have been released to go about society safe to walk the streets without adequate supervision. It just wouldn't be responsible, regardless of the state's budget problems," Wolf said.

He said new proposals were limited in the General Assembly this spring because of the state's budget restraints. Nevertheless, he predicted, legislation will be enacted to help the state tighten the prison system on those who sell illegal drugs.

"Our area has serious, serious problems resulting from the free reign of drug dealers in some neighboring communities," Wolf said. "Area legislators must stand up to those dealers and let them know our communities will not let them win."

Outing ends year for Venice DARE pupils

By Valerie Evenden
Staff writer

VENICE — Patrolman David Medley had the time of his life at Six Flags Over Mid-America, but he left the amusement park totally soothed with a smile.

Medley, an 11-year DARE (Drug Abuse Resistance Education) officer at the Venice Elementary School.

The drenching occurred when he escorted his sixth-grade pupils on a field trip to Six Flags, he related to the Venice School Board on Thursday night.

The outing marked completion of the successful DARE program at the school.

Thirty-three sixth graders participated in the drug awareness program, the first in the school district.

Medley was presented a certificate of appreciation from the board by Alvester Salmond, who was acting president in the absence of Wilbert Glasper.

"Mr. Glasper and others were very impressed with the job you have done and we thank you very much," Salmond said.

A letter was sent by the board to Mayor Tyrone Echols. Police

— We were unable to get a police officer."

After the original officer was made available for DARE training, the patrolman left Venice for another police department, it was recalled. Medley then was assigned to the program for 1990-91.

Deep wells

East sites to its "contaminated" sites in the time since the deep-well project began. And some of those new sites are the same as some of the proposed pump sites.

"As I understand it, the EPA is not going to let us pump water from those sites, so there may end up being less wells than planned," Marshall said.

Although he said he couldn't list all of the contaminated areas, he said one area involved some leaking underground petroleum tanks in the Granite City area.

Marshall stressed that the water quality study will not be completed and a final report and recommendation made until October, and nothing disclosed so far has actually put the project in peril.

"As I said, right now the project is pretty much on schedule," Marshall said.

"Thank God for General (H. Norman) Schwarzkopf and all the Desert Storm troops, those here today and the others who are still there."

"Thank God for Desert Storm and the 100 hours of ground warfare. We didn't play games in this one."

"But it's still going on while we have men and women over there."

"We are welcoming home our Desert Storm troops and we are saying we will never have another Vietnam," Steer said.

"And we are remembering the other veterans, the 53,402 killed and thousands others wounded in World War II — the paratroopers landing on rocks on the Pacific islands and flying, the ones getting shot, and those in the jungles in Germany, fighting against the anti-christ."

The 46,000 who died in Korea battling the North Koreans and Chinese.

"The 58,000 lost in Vietnam, those brave men in that steaming jungle with leeches hanging from them; and the 120,000 veterans lost to suicide since Vietnam."

Steer said those taking part in Desert Storm didn't know they were going for only a few months. "It could have been for 10 years, like Vietnam."

"Some of the Vietnam veterans have said, 'We never got anything like this (salute), but we must remember many of those troops in Desert Storm are the children of Vietnam veterans.'

Through the various celebrations, Steer said, "Our nation is also saying thank you to all the Vietnam veterans and to all veterans."

"Various veterans' groups are contributing. A new home for homeless veterans recently was started in Decatur and has been named named Fort Clinch."

Steer recalled the camaraderie he found in Vietnam.

"I know it was the same in World II and World War I. The men don't have to like each other, but they love one another."

"... Vietnam, I have never felt (such intense) camaraderie," Steer said.

He urged those present to continue to place emphasis on men still held prisoners of war and those listed as missing in action — by writing national and state legislators.

"I hate to see this flag (a black and white POW/MIA flag) for what it means, that we still have men missing. And I see it everywhere I go. I hate it and we need to do something about it."

"We need to start and write. We need to educate (legislators) and we need them (missing men) home."

"I know there are live veterans in Vietnam, Laos, Cambodia, China, Korea and Russia," he said.

"The Soviets took 20,000 prisoners in World War II and put them in prisons. They have never been heard from again, he said.

"I was in Russia about five months and was talking with officials about prisoners in Cambodia, Laos, Vietnam and Russia."

"The Soviets said they are trying to get some of their prisoners out of Afghanistan. They thought this was OK and said, 'Let's work together.' There was a crack."

"When we returned to Washington, we called a news conference to tell them (about it) and no news media showed up. All were invited," Steer said.

Steer encouraged everyone to write lawmakers and urge attention to veterans still prisoners of war.

Steer, the author of three books, operates the Fort Steer United Veterans and Family Support Center in Charlotte, Ark.

The Fort was launched when John and Donna Steer began taking veterans into their home to help them and then started building housing.

The Mobile Missionary Assistance Program (MMAP) was formed by a group of retired couples. It has helped build cabins where veterans and their families can stay. The same organization is now helping to construct a chapel.

Various veterans' groups are contributing.

A new home for homeless veterans recently was started in Decatur and has been named named Fort Clinch.

He will be in the Desert Storm homecoming in Decatur on July 4 and at Vietnam veterans reunions in Long Beach, Calif., July 19 and Kokomo, Ind., in August.

Fort Steer will hold its fifth annual veterans and families support reunion on Oct. 5 and 6.

Fireworks, clowning, swimming, country music and general gosp music are planned.

Anyone interested in attending the reunion or contributing to the program at Fort Steer may contact: Rev. John L. Steer, 75 Holmes Road, Charlotte, N.C. 27223.

State Rep. Sam Wolf also addressed those gathered at the memorial.

Also introduced were Granite City Mayor Von Dee Cruse and Madison Mayor John Bellcoff.

of the well project) to spend on an area with a high water table like Dobrey Slough, he would rather dig a new drainage ditch for the area.

On Friday, Greathouse said he had not heard that the water quality of the deep wells might require some form of treatment, but he reiterated his feelings toward the project.

"Like I've said all along, if the deep wells are going to cost the city even 15 cents, they're not going to get done," Greathouse said.

"Everyone with a nickel's worth of water in their yard is on the phone wanting us to spend a dollar, a hundred dollars or whatever it takes, to get rid of it. At some point, you have to call it quits."

Highland roars back to upend Junior-Triplets

By Brian Henry
Correspondent

GRANITE CITY — Torrential rains which delayed the second game of Saturday's double-header at Varsity Field, but the storm might have come a game too late.

The Junior Triplets and Highland halted play after 4½ innings, but the postponed game will be played at a later date. But it was the first game Tri-City wouldn't have minded resuming as they blew a 7-2 lead and lost 11-11. Highland scored five in the fifth and a 7-7 tie then got four more in the sixth after Tri-City (7-2) had scored a run in the bottom of the fifth.

All four Highland runs in the sixth came with two outs.

"Last night, we were down to Roxana 7-2 and came back to win," said Highland manager Scott Ruggs. "They showed a lot of confidence and character in that game. It carried over to today."

For the Junior Triplets, it was some shaky defense which did them in. They had plenty of both in wins over Breeze (2-1) and Collinsville (10-0) earlier in the week.

"You can't give them five outs and inning and expect to win," said manager Greg Patton.

The 4-6 hitters in Highland's lineup — Ryan Martin, Mike Hinman and Mike Tebbe — each drove in three runs. Hayman was also the winning pitcher.

"Those three guys are the key," said Ruggs. "Tebbe is around .500, Martin hit .400 and had 40 RBIs in the win. And Martin was our big cleanup hitter."

Granite City got three in the bottom of the first after spotting Highland two runs. Bill Herman's infield out scored one run after Jeff Ridenour had doubled. An error by Jeff Neidert in field hit plated two more runs. Jason Maxfield's bunt single started a two-run second. He stole second and went to third as Ridenour reached on an error. A wild pitch off the bat of Jason Maxfield sent Ridenour to third, where he scored on Herman's sacrifice fly.

"Bill is getting the runs home most often," said Patton. "He's disappointed in not getting any hits, but getting guys home is what counts."

Hayman had the runners foiled with his pickoff move. But three would-be victims stole bases anyway.

"It's a good style when you make the other team throw the ball around," said Patton.

Highland made four errors also and Granite City took 7-2 lead in the fourth. Eric Hicks started on a dropped third strike and went to second on a passed ball. (See JUNIORS, Page 3B)

LeVault, Harshany help lead Granite City to Mon-Clair split

GRANITE CITY — Success has been hard to come by for Granite City in the Mon-Clair League so far this summer.

Granite City (4-10) did manage to move into a tie with East Alton for fourth place in the St. Clair Division by splitting a double-header with East Alton on Sunday. The Silver Bullets used a three-hitter by Tony Stoecklin to win the opener, 5-1. But Scott O'Fallon came back and pitched Granite City to a 9-3 win in the nightcap.

Daren DePew had two of Granite City's three hits in the first game and was leading a home run. Stoecklin outpitched his SIUE teammate, Darin Hendrickson, by striking out six and walking four. Hendrickson fell to 0-5 with a 5.40 ERA after 10 hits and five earned runs in a complete game. He struck out four and walked three.

For East Alton, Eric Decker had three hits and Scott Posey had two hits.

LeVault allowed three runs in the first inning of the nightcap as Decker hit another home run. But Granite City came back and beat Brian "Plick" Clawson with a 10-hit attack. Brian Harshany — who's used to winning with Post 113 during the week — led the way with a triple, a home run and three RBIs.

Mays, Claggett help Eagles in pursuit of AAU victories

By Scott Bandie
Staff writer

ST. LOUIS — First-year coach Steve Thomas has discovered the simple formula that helped Rich Gray lead the St. Louis Eagles basketball team to successful years recently: Recruit the best high school players in the country.

Gray lured the top talent on both sides of the Mississippi River in recent years and that translated into many victories. It's déjà vu all over again this year, though. Thomas has brought in some fine players and the Eagles are again expected to have a successful season.

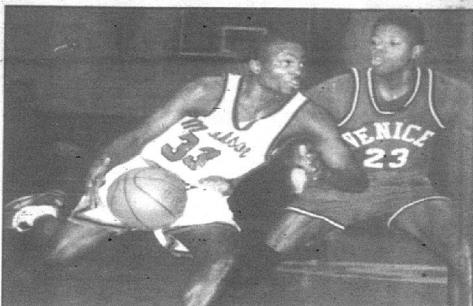

So far, so good. The Eagles will be playing for the 16-and-under men's division basketball championship of the Show-Me State Games today at 6 p.m. at the University of Missouri-St. Louis' Mark Twain Center. The Eagles defeated the Scorpions 64-51 in Saturday's quarterfinal round held at UMSL to advance to the final.

Word-of-mouth has helped the Eagles, Thomas said.

"We've developed a reputation for winning over the past seasons," said Thomas, who is also the head basketball coach at Cardinal Ritter High. "We had tryouts back in April and thought we could get many guys out for the team. Instead, 65 of them showed up. We chose the ones that we thought would work well as a team."

The team roster features some big names, including prep basketball, including Ken Robinson of Brentwood, the Journal Athlete of the Year; Venice's Erwin Claggett; and Madison's Andre Mays. Claggett, a St. Louis University recruit, was a member of last year's national contender. Other members on the roster are Eric Bickel (Ritter), George Lee (Cardinal Ritter), John Winfield (Cardinal Ritter), Andrew Evans (Cardinal Ritter), Scott Highmark (Parkway West), Ron Golden (University City), Andrew Gapp (Coppin'sburg), Chris Woods (Francis Howell North), Jamal Johnson (Kirkwood), Keson Conley (St. Louis Lincoln), Daris Hicks ships at the end of July in Tallahassee, Fla. Last year, under the leadership of Gray, the Eagles raised a lot of eyebrows around the country by finishing third in the Amateur Athletic Union nationals.

"We're all looking forward to the nationals," Thomas said.

"The boys are third in the tournament last year. This time, they feel like they've got the talent to win it all."

"They're not only good players, but they're also good kids. It's a real pleasure to work with them. They not only love to play the game, but they also play well together."

Maxfield reached on an error to score Hicks and Herman drove in his third run on a suicide squeeze.

But right-hander Joe Rieser ran into trouble in the fifth. Two hits and a walk scored one run, then Rieser hit Martin on an 0-2 pitch to fill the bases. Nunes took the mound and gave up an RBI single. Haynes followed with a sinking liner to right that bounded past Ridenour. The double cleared the bases to tie the game, but Tebbs was out at third.

Tri-City regained the lead on another squeeze this time by Nunes. Tebbs followed with a two-strikeout to start the sixth, but then everything fell apart. Shortstop Brian Kohler couldn't handle Jim Stock's ground ball, and Tebbs walked, then Keith Ridenour apparently struck out, but Chris Luffman dropped the pitch and tried to get Stock at third. Too late. Martin followed with a two-run single to give Highland 9-8 lead.

Dooley pitched a three-hitter in the June 12 win over Breezes. He was perfect through 5 1/2 innings, but struck out 11 and didn't walk anyone. He also drove in a run. Brent Dippel pitched a three-hit shutout in Collinsville on Friday. Granite City batted .300 with 10 hits and one home run in five innings. Ridenour and Herman had three hits each, while Nunes drove in two runs.

The Junior Triplets are idle until Friday when they host O'Fallon in a 7:30 p.m. game. They travel to Alton at 3:30 p.m. Saturday, then come home right after that game to host Evansville (Ind.) at 7 p.m.

Wednesday night Mello Yello racing series at Tri-City cancelled cars to put on a race."

The last two weeks of Tri-City Speedway's Mello Yello Racing series have been cancelled due to a lack of racer participation. The series, scheduled for every Wednesday in June, featured the USAC winged sprint car and IMCA modifieds. Promoter Bob Wente cancelled the remaining programs after the June 12 program drew only 10 USAC entrants.

"Due to the non-support of participants, we're cancelling that we'd be unable to put on a race if the caliber of fans have been accustomed to," Wente said. "We appreciate the support of the fans who have been with us all season and the participants who chose to be here. We made concessions to our fans to thank them and paid the participants all the prize money they had been promised. Our gestures were well-received, we think. We'll just have to pick up with our June 29 program."

For attending ticket stubs from the June 12 event can receive $3 discounts to future events at Tri-

City, Wente said. The stubs will be honored at the June 29 appearance of NASCAR star Ken Schrader and the AC/Delco NASCAR All Star Tour. The July 13 World of Outlaws event is also included in the offer said.

Wente called the Wednesday series an experiment that failed.

"It was a pilot idea to generate interest during the week," Wente said. "A lot of promotion went into it. We had no reason to think it wouldn't be a positive idea, but it didn't work. Now we'll go back to the basics with other events we have planned and try to add more later in the year."

Wente said the measures offered to the fans and racers were intended to "try to turn a bad situation into a positive one by maintaining our credibility and approval."

BrieflyFellowship alters schedule

The Rev. Ron Johnson has announced that the church will change its Sunday evening services to Monday night Miracle rallies, in an attempt to increase service sharing with the community.

Full Gospel Fellowship is located at the corner of Orville and Vine Boulevard in Granite City. Sunday school is at 9:45 a.m. and morning worship service at 11 a.m.

Assembly slates celebration

Harvest Assembly will hold its first anniversary celebration today, Sunday, June 16.

As a part of this day of celebration producer Dale McCoy and his trio from Oklahoma City, Okla., will provide music and direction of the choir.

McCoy was the producer for Christian World Soundtracks Inc. for more than 18 years prior to opening his own recording studio and company in Oklahoma City.

He is involved in writing, producing, recording, soundtracks, videos and conducting choir seminars throughout the United States similar to the seminar he is holding at Harvest.

The trio consists of McCoy, his wife, Carolyn, and Cyndi St. Clair. Along with choir and band, they will be singing in both the 10:30 a.m. and 6 p.m. services. A potluck dinner will be held at 1 p.m. at the Pontoon Beach Senior Citizens Hall located off Highway 111.

Pastor is Roy A. Boyer. For information call 931-4944.

Friendly Agers change meeting

The Friendly Agers group of the Second Baptist Church of Granite City has changed its meeting date, President Bob Lewis announced.

The group will now meet at 10:30 a.m. June 18. The meeting had originally been scheduled for June 25.

Lewis said the rescheduling was necessary because of a conflict with Vacation Bible School, which runs from 9:30 a.m. to noon, June 24 through 28.

Kabobs perform steak-out

Pretty as a picture every time, kabobs make any occasion special and easy. Ready in less than 30 minutes, Beef, Pepper and Mushroom Kabobs are a welcome addition to menu planning for today's busy cooks.

This dish features morsels of tender, juicy steak with tasty and colorful bell peppers and large mushrooms. They are seasoned delicately with a lemon, mustard, honey and oregano mixture.

Boneless beef top sirloin steak is the featured beef cut, perfectly suited for kabobs. Tasty, flavored, lean and versatile, these steaks are a favorite for a variety of other uses, from salads to sandwiches, in stir-fries or as a whole steak.

It is just one of the leaner beef cuts the beef industry refers to as the "skinniest six." Each of these beef cuts—beef top round, eye round, round tip, top sirloin, top loin and tenderloin—contains less than 100 calories. Beef top sirloin, in fact, contains just 165 calories per 3-ounce, broiled serving.

For use in kabobs, the steak is cut in 1 1/4-inch pieces. The easy and fast cooking method of broiling works well for these kabobs. Placed on a grill over medium coals, the kabobs are cooked 10 to 15 minutes for rare to medium doneness. The weather turns rainy, place the broiler pan so surface of meat is 3 to 4 inches from the heat and broil 10 to 15 minutes for medium doneness.

Beef, pepper and mushroom kabobs

1 lb. boneless beef top sirloin steak, cut 1 1/4 inches thick, cut in 1 1/4 inch pieces
2 tbsp. olive oil
1 tbsp. water
2 tsp. fresh lemon juice
1 tsp. honey
1 tsp. Dijon mustard
1/2 tsp. pepper
1/2 tsp. oregano
1/2 tsp. paprika
1 medium green, red or yellow bell pepper, cut in 1 1/4 inch pieces
12 large mushrooms
Salt, if desired

Whisk together oil, lemon juice, water, mustard, honey, oregano and pepper in large bowl. Add beef, bell pepper and mushroom pieces, turning to coat.

DRESS UP dinnertime with convenient Beef, Pepper and Mushroom Kabobs.

Alternately thread beef, pepper pieces and mushrooms on each of four 12-inch skewers.

Place kabobs on grill over medium coals. Turning occasionally, grill 10 to 15 minutes to desired doneness of rare to medium.

Broiling directions: Kabobs may be broiled so surface of meat is 3 to 4 inches from heat. Broil 10 to 15 minutes, turning occasionally. Season with salt.

Makes 4 servings. 264 calories per serving. 14 g fat, 8 g carbohydrate, 136 mg sodium and 76 mg cholesterol each.

Red cherries brighten June

By Judy Eddy
Home economist

They're red and they're ready to eat. It's time for the orchards and in the markets.

Whether the recipe calls for dark sweet cherries or the tart variety, a wise shopper looks for fruit that is firm and bright colored, light-colored, small, hard fruit will not ripen further from storage or cooking, so start with quality fruit. Cherries that are soft or sticky or have dull brown spots are overripe. This will be of inferior quality for eating.

Cherries should be washed before refrigerator storage. Sort and discard any that are bruised or overripe. The cherries should be dried with paper towels. Moisture on the fruit will encourage mold growth.

Fresh cherries will last in a refrigerator four to five days.

Frozen cherries bring their own special flavor to recipes, but many recipes recommend frozen cherries or canned pie filling because they are convenient and have been processed to remove pectin.

Preparing recipes that specify a weight measure of cherries, an allowance has to be made for pitting and discarding ones that are overripe or bruised.

One trick for a cherry-microwave combination is to combine 1 can (21 ounces) cherry pie filling and 1 teaspoon almond flavoring in a microwave-safe measuring cup.

Microwave at medium-high 50 percent power 2 minutes until heated through. Over pound cake or ice cream.

Less salt lets the freshest flavors tantalize taste buds

By Patricia Abels
Registered Dietitian
American Heart Association
St. Louis Chapter

Good things happen to those who begin to eat less sodium. Besides reaping numerous health benefits, they discover new and exciting ways to enjoy food.

One way to eat less sodium is to eat less salt, which is about half sodium.

"I feel that salt actually hides the flavors of individual foods," says registered dietitian Lana Shepek, nutritionist with the Trials for Hypertension Prevention, a program sponsored by St. Louis University. "Developing a taste for less sodium allows you to experience delightful nuances of flavor—one of the finer pleasures of eating."

Shepek teaches her clients to enjoy foods that are subtly flavored with summertime staples instead of salt. She encourages them to let their taste buds adjust gradually, which means avoiding the urge to add more "cold turkey" from salt. Here are her favorite tips:

• Experiment with items such as canola oil, which as cooking some. If they seem tasteless, at first add back a small amount of salt. This still will be less sodium than in canned versions. Gradually cut back the amount used.

• Mix half regular tomato or vegetable juice, which is high in sodium, with half no-salt-added juice as taste buds adjust. This works well with all canned foods.

• Invest in a good pepper mill. Enjoy freshly ground pepper—the spice probably most taken for granted—on top of almost everything.

• Pick the freshest seasonal vegetables at their peak. The flavor will cancel out their natural salt.

• Season tomatoes with chopped fresh basil, new potatoes with dill, green beans with toasted sesame seeds, and carrots or yellow squash with nutmeg and cinnamon.

• Intensify flavors with a little sugar, orange juice, lemon juice or flavored vinegars instead of salt.

• Create homemade low-fat salad dressing by diluting regular dressing with wine vinegar, a little water and a little sugar.

• Highlight saltless chicken broth with sprigs of fresh rosemary and thyme.

One of Shepek's favorite recipes is Lemon-Poppy Dressing, a wonderful flavor that enhances fruits of all kinds.

Lemon-poppy seed dressing

1/2 cup frozen lemonade concentrate undiluted
2 tbsp. oil
1 tsp. poppy seeds

Combine lemonade concentrate, sugar, oil and poppy seeds in small mixing bowl. Beat with rotary beater or whisk until smooth.

Serve over fruit salad.

Yields 1 cup or sixteen 1-tablespoon servings. 54 calories, 5 g fat, no cholesterol and 2 mg sodium each.

Recipe adapted from the American Heart Association "Low-Salt Cookbook," by Dr. Rodman D. Starke and registered dietitian Mary Winston.

Shortbread — requires no long preparation. Pair it with fresh strawberries for a heavenly delight meant for eating in this world.

Berry shortcake

Great for summer's fruitful homecoming

The calendar does not have to herald the arrival of summer. As far as we're concerned, fresh fruit shortcake says it all.

This is the kind of dessert that causes dreams in the dead of winter. Strawberry Almond Shortcake takes a classic country dessert recipe and dresses it up.

Instead of the usual biscuit-like shortcake, these dressed-up shortbreads are crisp and lighter than individual cookies, which resemble cookies. Almond paste ready to use from a can, enhances the shortbread with a lightly sweet, nutty flavor, a perfect complement for strawberries and cream.

Strawberry almond shortcake

1/2 cup (4 oz.) almond paste, lightly packed
1 cup butter
1/2 cup sugar
2 cups flour
3 tbsp. sliced almonds
2 cups whipping cream
3 pt. strawberries, sliced

In food processor with metal blade, process almond paste until finely chopped. Add butter and sugar. Process until thoroughly mixed. Add flour. Process until dough forms ball.

Wrap dough in plastic. Chill 30 minutes until firm but not frozen.

On lightly floured work surface, roll dough about 1/2 inch thick. Using glass with floured rim or cookie cutter, cut dough in 3 1/2-inch circles. Transfer to ungreased baking sheet. Bake at 325° for 10 to 12 minutes until edges are golden brown.

Spread almonds in single layer in shallow pan. Toast 5 to 10 minutes, stirring occasionally, until lightly toasted. Remove from pan to cool.

With cream until soft peaks form.

To serve, place one shortcake on each plate. Top with 1/2 cup strawberries, dollop of whipped cream and cover with another shortcake. Top with 1/2 cup strawberries, small dollop whipped cream and sprinkle with 1 generous teaspoon sliced almonds. Serve immediately.

Makes 8 servings.

Whip cream until soft peaks form.

Home and garden

From The Garden

Proper pruning maintains tree's health, size, form

By Benjamin N. Chu

To many gardeners the art of pruning trees is mysterious and misunderstood. However, next to watering, pruning may very well be one of the most important plant-maintenance tasks.

Pruning the terminal part of a plant, alive or dead, for the benefit of the whole plant. Proper tools are essential. The best tools are a sturdy pair of bypass pruners and a saw that cuts when pulled. Proper pruning tools will prevent torn or ragged cuts. Torn cuts will not heal properly and will leave an area exposed for decay.

Pruning cuts should be made just forward of the branch bark ridge, found between the tree trunk and the point at which the branch originates from the trunk. Stubs left by improper pruning cuts will eventually rot and spread rot to the main tree trunk.

When pruning a tree, the first priority is to remove diseased, dying or dead parts. The initial step is important in preventing disease from spreading and infecting healthy branches.

Many flowering trees produce two types of vigorous shoots from latent buds. Latent buds that develop in the trunk or lateral branches are called water sprouts. These can quickly overpower a tree and rob it of valuable nutrients. Water sprouts can be identified by their vertical growth habit and should be removed at the point of origin.

Suckers, latent buds that develop from the roots, are also detrimental to the health and vigor of the tree. These should be removed at or below ground level.

Trees that have not been properly pruned often develop weak or narrow crotches. The crotch of the tree is any place where two branches come together. A wide crotch should be trained to a 90-degree angle, should be promoted if at all possible. A weak crotch can result in severe damage during high winds.

Selective removal of branches in a mature tree's crown will allow for greater air and light penetration. Many insects and diseases thrive in a stagnant air environment.

By improving air circulation through a plant's crown, many of these problems can be prevented without spraying. If, however, insects and diseases do become a problem, a more open crown will allow for greater spray penetration.

Air and light penetration are important factors in a tree's flower and fruit development.

Without adequate air and light the flowers and fruit production will be greatly diminished.

Correct pruning is important in maintaining a plant's size and form. Thinning will reduce a tree's density but will not affect its overall size. Thinning, in conjunction with pruning, a plant will quickly grow out of proportion to the surrounding landscape. It is important to be familiar with a tree's natural form so that its appropriate shape can be maintained.

Prune your tree in the winter, if you want to develop the tree's structure, but be careful not to over-prune during this dormant period. Over-pruning will result in an excess of new spring growth. Prune in the summer to inhibit growth; summer is a good time to control a plant's shape and size.

Pruning is an art and a science that requires practice and years of observing plant reaction. Patience is critical. It is always better to remove too little than to remove too much.

These pruning guidelines will help you to develop a well-shaped tree, but one that will remain healthy and vigorous for many years of enjoyment.

Student gets award in physics

The United States Achievement Academy announced that Krista M. Morgan has been named a United States National Collegiate Award winner in physics.

The award is a prestigious honor very few students can ever hope to attain. In fact, the Academy recognizes less than 10 percent of all American college students.

Krista, who attends Illinois College in Jacksonville, was nominated for this National Award by Dr. Pilcher, professor at the school.

Krista is a member in the United States Achievement Academy Official Collegiate Yearbook, published nationally.

Krista is the daughter of Ray and Mary Morgan of Granite City.

Spike Lee offers his best with 'Jungle Fever'

By Harry Hamm
Correspondent

"Jungle Fever" is filmmaker Spike Lee's best picture, perhaps the best he will ever make.

Set in Harlem and Bensonhurst in New York City, "Jungle Fever" is the super-charged story of a thoughtful, middle-aged Manhattan-based architect named Flipper Purify, played with skilled consistency by Wesley Snipes. Snipes seems to be the Sidney Portier of his generation, and he is well served by a cast led by Lonette McKee, a buyer for Bloomingdale's department store. They have one daughter and live a comfortable life.

Flipper finds himself in the throes of love affairs with a temporary secretary at his office named Angie Tucci, played by Annabella Sciorra, Lee, who wrote, directed and produced "Jungle Fever," is both honest and hard-hitting in his treatment of the sexual comedy without becoming sensational.

"Jungle Fever" is most significant for its mind-opening treatment of the polarized community of Italians and blacks in which the action takes place, and the attempts to bridge the gap between them.

John Turturro is excellent as Angie's ex-boyfriend Paulie, who is understandably disoriented by his new life in New York. John gives a short but memorable supporting performance of Academy Award proportions as Gator, Flipper's frenzied older brother, who is a terminal crack addict.

Anthony Quinn plays Paulie's demanding, uncompromising father. Ossie Davis and Ruby Dee play Flipper's parents. Tim Robbins and Brad Dourif have small parts as Flipper's associates at the office.

"Jungle Fever" is not without its humor. In fact, Lee has brought to this film an inspired balance between the light-hearted and dramatic.

Scoring for "Jungle Fever" is drawn from somewhat old-fashioned Anglo-Saxon album tunes to a selection of more contemporary tunes, most of which were written by Stevie Wonder.

"Jungle Fever" is a jazzy, serious work and a movie for people to study and talk about for years to come. If it doesn't get nominated for Best Picture next February, there is no justice.

Rated R (sex, violence, drug addiction). Run: 105 minutes.

Showing at St. Clair, Clarkson, Halls Ferry, Kenrick, Northwest Plaza, Ronne's, Union Station, St. Clair, Regency Square, Esquire.

Annabella Sciorra and Wesley Snipes become romantically involved, much to the dismay of their families and friends, in "Jungle Fever."
